Corps' Oakland Park at Lewisville Lake Closed for Repairs

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers announced today that Oakland Park, a popular camping area at Lewisville Lake, is closed indefinitely so that a malfunctioning sewage disposal system can be repaired. The park cannot be operated without adequate sanitation facilities and all three of the park's restrooms use the sewage disposal system.

The repair work will require that the park be closed for up to 4 months. The Corps operates other nearby campgrounds at Pilot Knoll and Hickory Creek Parks which can be utilized by displaced campers.
